46. Defendants did not post the required New York State Department of Labor posters regarding minimum wage pay rates, overtime pay, tip credit, and pay day.

Plaintiff XIAOJIAN YANG

47. From on or about July 5, 2017 to April 1, 2019, Plaintiff XIAOJIAN YANG was employed by Defendants to work as a Construction Worker at Defendant's various construction sites located in New York and New Jersey.

48. From on or about July 5, 2017 to September 5, 2017, for around two (2) months Plaintiff XIAOJIAN YANG's regular work schedule ran as follows:

- a. 07:00 to 16:00 for nine (9) hours a day for five (5) days,
- b. 07:00 to 18:30 for eleven and a half (11.5) hours for two (2) days,

49. From on or about July 5, 2017 to September 5, 2017, Plaintiff XIAOJIAN YANG worked seven (7) days a week, with no days off.

50. Thus, from July 5, 2017 to September 5, 2017 Plaintiff XIAOJIAN YANG worked a total of sixty-eight (68) hours a week.

51. From on or about September 6, 2017 to April 1, 2019, Plaintiff XIAOJIAN WANG's regular work schedule ran as follows:

- a. Twenty percent (20%) of the time, Plaintiff worked seven (7) days a week,
  - i. from 07:00 to 16:00 for nine (9) hours a day for five (5) days, and
  - ii. from 07:00 to 18:30 for eleven and a half (11.5) hours for two (2) days

- b. Eighty percent (80%) of the time, Plaintiff worked six (6) days,
  - i. from 07:00 to 16:00 for nine (9) hours a day for five (4) days, and
  - ii. from 07:00 to 18:30 for eleven and a half (11.5) hours for two (2) days
  - iii. for a total of fifty-nine (59) hours a week

52. Thus, from September 6, 2017 to April 1, 2019 Plaintiff XIAOJIAN WANG worked an average of sixty hours and fifty minutes (60.80) a week.

53. At all relevant times, Plaintiff XIAOJIAN YANG did not have a fixed time for lunch or for dinner.

60. Defendant owed Plaintiff a total Thirty Six Hundred Four Hundred Sixty One Dollars ($36,461).

61. Throughout his employment, Plaintiff XIAOJIAN YANG was not given a statement with his weekly payment reflecting employee's name, employer's name, employer's address and telephone number, employee's rate or rates of pay, any deductions made from employee's wages, any allowances claimed as part of the minimum wage, and the employee's gross and net wages for each pay day in Chinese, Plaintiff's native language.

62. Throughout his employment, Plaintiff XIAOJIAN YANG was not compensated at least one-and-one half his promised hourly wage for all hours worked above forty (40) in each workweek.

COLLECTIVE ACTION ALLEGATIONS

63. Plaintiff brings this action individually and as class representative individually and on behalf of all other and former non-exempt employees who have been or were employed by the Defendants for up to the last three (3) years, through entry of judgment in this case (the "Collective Action Period") and whom were not compensated at their promised hourly rate for all hours worked and at one and one half times their promised work for all hours worked in excess of forty (40) hours per week (the “Collective Action Members”).

CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

64. Plaintiff bring his NYLL claims pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (“Fed. R. Civ. P.”) Rule 23, on behalf of all non-exempt personnel employed by Defendants on or after the date that is six years before the filing of the Complaint in this case as defined herein (the “Class Period”).

65. All said persons, including Plaintiff, are referred to herein as the “Class.”

66. The Class members are readily ascertainable. The number and identity of the Class members are determinable from the records of Defendants. The hours assigned and worked, the positions held, and the rate of pay for each Class Member is also determinable from Defendants’ records. For purpose of notice and other purposes related to this action, their names and addresses are readily available from Defendants. Notice can be provided by means permissible under said Fed. R. Civ. P. 23.

Numerosity

67. The proposed Class is so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable, and the disposition of their claims as a class will benefit the parties and the Court. Although the precise number of such persons is unknown, and the facts on which the calculation of the number is presently within the sole control of the Defendants, upon information and belief, there are more than forty (40) members of the class.

Commonality

68. There are questions of law and fact common to the Class which predominate over any questions affecting only individual class members, including:

- a. Whether Defendant employed Plaintiff and the Class within the meaning of the New York law;
- b. Whether Plaintiff and Class members are promised and not paid at their promised hourly wage;
- c. Whether Plaintiff and Class members are not paid at least the hourly minimum wage for each hour worked;
- d. Whether Plaintiff and Class members are entitled to and paid overtime at their promised hourly wage under the New York Labor Law;
- e. Whether Defendants maintained a policy, pattern and/or practice of failing to provide requisite statutory meal periods;
- f. Whether Defendants provided a Time of Hire Notice detailing rates of pay and payday at the start of Plaintiff and the Rule 23 Class's start of employment and/or timely thereafter;
- g. Whether Defendants provided paystubs detailing the rates of pay and credits taken towards the minimum wage to Plaintiff and the Rule 23 class on each payday; and
- h. At what common rate, or rates subject to common method of calculation was and is Defendants required to pay the Class members for their work.

Typicality

69. Plaintiff's claims are typical of those claims which could be alleged by any member of the Class, and the relief sought is typical of the relief that would be sought by each member of the Class in separate actions. All the Class members were subject to the same corporate practices of Defendants, as alleged herein, of failing to pay minimum wage or overtime compensation. Defendants' corporate-wide policies and practices affected all Class members similarly, and Defendants benefitted from the same type of unfair and/or wrongful acts as to each Class member. Plaintiff and other Class members sustained similar losses, injuries and damages arising from the same unlawful policies, practices and procedures.

Adequacy

70. Plaintiff is able to fairly and adequately protect the interests of the Class and have no interests antagonistic to the Class. Plaintiff is represented by attorneys who are experienced and competent in representing Plaintiff in both class action and wage-and-hour employment litigation cases.

Superiority

71. A class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of the controversy, particularly in the context of wage-and-hour litigation where individual Class members lack the financial resources to vigorously prosecute a lawsuit against corporate defendants. Class action treatment will permit a large number of similarly situated persons to prosecute their common claims in a single forum simultaneously, efficiently and without the unnecessary duplication of efforts and expenses that numerous individual actions engender. Because the losses, injuries and damages suffered by each of the individual Class members are small in the sense pertinent to a class action analysis, the expenses and burden of individual litigation would make it extremely difficult or impossible for the individual Class members to redress the wrongs done to them. Further, important public interests will be served by addressing the matter as a class action. The adjudication of individual litigation claims would result in a great expenditure of Court and public resources; however, treating the claims as a class action would result in a significant saving of these costs. The prosecution of separate actions by individual members of the Class would create a risk of inconsistent and/or varying adjudications with respect to the individual members of the Class, establishing incompatible standards of conduct for Defendants and resulting in the impairment of Class members' rights and the disposition of their interests through actions to which they were not parties. The issues in this action can be decided by means of common, class-wide proof. In addition, if appropriate, the Court can, and is empowered to, fashion methods to efficiently manage this action as a class action.

72. Upon information and belief, Defendants and other employers throughout the state violate the New York Labor Law. Current employees are often afraid to assert their rights out of fear of direct or indirect retaliation. Former employees are fearful of bringing claims because doing so can harm their employment, future employment, and future efforts to secure employment. Class actions provide class members who are not named in the complaint a degree of anonymity which allows for the vindication of their rights while eliminating or reducing these risks.
